Picture this: you're sitting by the fire with a glass of Cabernet, a sweeping view of snowy mountaintops gently reflected on a shimmering lake in your sights. Sounds too good to be true? We assure you, it's not. This dream can become a reality when you spend your next holiday at The Greystone Inn. This hidden gem of a resort is situated amidst the winter landscape of the North Carolina mountains. With its serene lakeside location and ultra-cozy accommodations, The Greystone Inn promises the perfect luxurious and tranquil winter getaway for all who visit.

THE INN'S RICH HISTORY

The story behind The Greystone Inn is a tale of timeless elegance and history. This charming establishment has roots dating back to the early 20th century, making it a long-enjoyed attraction of the area. The story began in 1910 when socialite Lucy Armstrong and her husband George started vacationing at Lake Toxaway. A few years later, in 1913, Lucy had decidedly fallen in love with the area and prompted George to build a vacation home named Hillmont on a rocky knoll by the lake.

Shortly after, a flood damaged the area, but Lucy remained devoted to her mountain home, even after her husband's death in 1924. She remarried and expanded the home in the 1930s, which also helped support the local community. Her stunning property eventually became the Greystone Inn in 1985, fulfilling her wish for others to enjoy beautiful Lake Toxaway just as she did.

WINTER SERENITY BY THE LAKE

As winter descends upon the North Carolina mountains, the landscape around Lake Toxaway undergoes a breathtaking transformation. Snow blankets the shores, lending an ethereal quality to the scenery. The Greystone Inn, perched at the water's edge, offers an uninterrupted view of this winter wonderland. It's a place where you can lose yourself in the tranquility of nature while still soaking in the warmth of Greystone's southern hospitality.

For those who crave outdoor adventure, Lake Toxaway has plenty to offer. Enjoy a romantic ski trip at Sapphire Resort, a mere 20 minutes from the Greystone.
